By Paul Rardin

I've a confession to make. I went fishing over the week end and landed not a bass. But that's nothing. There were three or four other fellows along who are supposed to be bang up fishermen and they landed nearly a one. So, I don't feel so bad. I tried my best to get, and the contractor had and use my rubber band ball but they wouldn't do it. Consequently we ate barbecue and steak.

The news that Conner's Highway will be opened on the morning of April 5 is good news to all who live in the Lake Section. Brooks Bateman, road board member, said the contractor had agreed to open the road in order that out of town visitors might be able to reach the Everglades Fair. After the opening of the road, it will be necessary to close the road again for four or five days while the finishing touches are put on.

With Conner's Highway finished work will start on Road 25. And that that dangerous stretch is rebuilt, we will be in pretty good shape as far as roads to the East. The contractor is working on Road 26 is completed—if it ever is—we'll have a straight shot to the lower tip of the peninsula.

The boys in charge of the Everglades Fair are making plans to pull a big one this time. They are spending a lot of money making everything epic and span on the Legion grounds. I suggest you get the date on your calendar and prepare for a week of excellent entertainment.

I see where Paul Harris, founder of Rotary, is going to be in West Palm Beach next Tuesday. I'd like to hear Paul tell of his experience of fathering a movement that has grown to be world-wide. About 100 members of the Rotary will be attending and I suppose that there will be at least that many from the Belle Glade club.

"Business is still quiet with the merchants of Pahokee and Belle Glade. All of them are looking forward to the spring tomato crop and its results. If the growers hit a good crop business will be good with the boys for a month or two. If the crop fails—need I tell you the answer?"

Julian Chandler announces the opening of a new drug store, this week in the building formerly occupied by Bailey's grocery next door to the post office in Pahokee. The store has had many years of experience in this particular line and I predict he will build up a fine business. The store carries a large stock of drugs and medicines. Pahokee four drug stores.

Not speaking of drug stores and I think of John Bolton and the B. H. Drug Company—formerly Pahokee Pharmacy. John announces an expansion program and says he has taken in the extra space formerly occupied by the Rifkin Brothers. The store has moved in. John invites old and new friends to visit him.

I wonder how many of those who take time to read this column ever give a thought to how this type was set. Just the other day Bert Lapp came into the office and I took time out to explain very hurriedly how it's done. He was more or less amazed with the operation of our Linotype machine—a machine to set type—and I had always thought of a Linotype machine as something to be taken for granted. I know it will be appreciated by many in a while when one or two of the thousands of parts go haywire and never again any serious thought to how human hands might set an outsider.

For years I haven't been able to smoke cigars. I don't know why but I've never liked them. The other day I was in Pahokee and a friend gave me a pack of a half variety. It was good and I've been smoking one now and then since—two for a while. They're fair and at times I'm almost tempted to give up my favorite ten cent variety for the cigars. And to think of all the campaign cigars I have passed up in my time.

It's just a little over a month now before I'm going to have a experience in the life of all the things I've heard about Tallahassee are so it looks like I'll be a good one. Newspapers over the state say legislators are the next thing to those thieves and nasty members. Ope, paper

Excellent Progress Is Shown By Everglades Fair Group

Sale of Booths and Co-Operation Encouraging to Officials

Officers of the Everglades Fair and Beach Festival are making excellent progress with their plans for their annual presentation. The officials in direct charge of the preliminary work have left no stone unturned in making arrangements for the biggest and best Everglades Fair yet held. Booths have been erected on the Legion grounds and this week the sign painters are busy painting the huge signs which will publicize the various business houses of the Lake and neighboring communities. The signs will be erected about the new booth.

An office has been erected on the annual fair and they are stated yesterday that lights and a telephone will soon be installed there. Malcolm Miller, secretary of the fair, stated yesterday that sale of exhibit booths was most satisfactory. "We are pleased with the response that we are receiving from the various business firms in Palm Beach county," Mr. Miller said. "The co-operation and assistance make our work a great deal easier and the Pahokee Post of the American Legion is of great help."

Legion officials are going to a great deal of expense in preparing for the annual fair and they are hopeful that schools and civic organizations will co-operate with them in making the presentation a success. Present plans call for several more vegetable exhibits this year than before.

Pepper Concedes Seniority To His Colleague Andrews

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Senator Claude Pepper settled the question as to who is the senior member of the committee on Education and Labor. Mr. Pepper conceded seniority to Mr. J. Mark Andrews. "I am informed that our situation is without precedent in our history. Although I was first nominated, both of us were elected at the same time, so that neither of us really has seniority of service. But to put the matter at rest, I think Senator Andrews at it, I think Senator Andrews at it, I think Senator Andrews at it."

FRICITION IS OUT SAYS GOVERNOR

TALLAHASSEE, Feb. 25.—Governor Fred P. Code said today he and D. Stuart Gilles, president-designate of the senate, had reached an understanding to avoid friction in governmental finances at a dinner at the executive mansion. "There is a fine knowledge of legislation and especially on the part of the senate," Code said. "I think the going to be a very valuable experience for the senate."

Code had proposed to trim state disbursements by 10 percent. Gilles had proposed to increase state disbursements by 10 percent. "We had a nice chat," Governor Code said of his dinner with Gilles. "We talked over legislation and the senate practically agreed on about everything."

"There's nothing to any report about friction between the senate and the legislature. There's never been any friction between me and Senator Gilles," Code said. "The state legislature and the senate are working together to improve the state of Florida."

Officials Fuss Over Who Gets Appointive Job

Wrangling continues in Tallahassee and the Legislators haven't even arrived on the scene. Meetings at the State Capitol continue to furnish front page news for the papers of Florida. Wednesday's happenings were recorded by a Tallahassee correspondent in the following story:
Governor Cone pushed Preston L. Ayres, chief of the state police, toward a chair today as Ayres sought to address the senate. Ayres was evoked when Comptroller J. M. Lee put it to recall and cancel the appointment of J. H. Threlkott to succeed Ayres. At Ayres' desk was a note from the state cabinet, Governor Cone said:
"So sir, I don't propose to have any arguments from you."
Ayres persisted and said he wanted to explain his bill which the governor said should be passed and laying cards obtained by Ayres from the hospital committee. "That's a rubber stamp bill approved without my knowledge," Ayres said. "I wanted to be crooked do you think I would let it be and send it over here?"
"Will you sit down?" said Cone in a low voice.

Federal Report on Florida's Crops

During the first two weeks in February, rains fell throughout the state, resulting in a moderate but still somewhat above normal crop. In Florida all sections received rains which were generally beneficial. The frost was caused by a cold front which moved in from the north. The frost was caused by a cold front which moved in from the north.

SAFETY ON ROAD 25

With its work practically completed, the Oklawaha Flood control district faces abolition in the coming legislative session.

It is reported that the district has about $100,000 on hand which has been collected in taxes over the 11 counties of the district, and has not been required to spend on flood control works. The federal government through its corps of engineers has assumed complete charge of construction and maintenance of the long levee, the St. Lucie canal and the vamped Oklawaha levee which make up the flood control system at Lake Okechobee.

What to do with the $100,000 the question.

The most logical answer seems to be to fence dangerous highways in the Everglades, such as road 25 or the Sugarland highway. Some stretches of this road are so dangerous that they have been closed to traffic at night and prefer not to travel even by day.

Whether the money can be used legally for fences when it was collected for flood control is matter that must be left to the lawmakers. Certainly flood control and public safety are close enough kin to allow this use without splitting too fine a hair as to the legality of such diversion. —Miami Herald.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay.

I've annoyed a lot of different gatherings with so-called talks about this and that, but last week I had a new experience. Nate Beck, publisher of the Arcadian and Frank Holder, secretary of the Taft Memorial Highway association, got their heads together and decided to dump me up to their convention delegates along with the road risk, swamp cabbage and rattlesnake news.

Not being a highwayman myself, I couldn't tell 'em much, in fact what I don't know about roads would fill a lot of chuck holes. And they've still got a few holes to fill before the highway is completed. They've made mighty good progress so far, and with the live bunch they've got working on the proposition, the Taft highway is bound to become one of the best known and most popular routes from the Great Lakes to Florida.

I recall a trip I made over that route twenty years ago before Mr. Beck and Mr. Holder had anything to do with it, so I felt that I was sort of a Taft highway pioneer.

In those days the roads in Georgia were clay trails and trying to navigate 'em in a Model T had just about the same result as jumping beat a mile.

You would get started up a hill, go ahead 50 feet and slide back 60. Then you'd get over the road when it was wet, and the road would be all over you when it was dry. I remember one stretch up the side of a mountain without getting down to a good rock base, then they'd poured asphalt on it just about the way I'd pour syrup on a mess of pancakes. The effect the motorist got in driving over it was just about the same as a cockroach would get from running hell bent over a slab of Swiss cheese.

Everybody used to drive in the middle of the road in those days. You'd even get out to drive on the right side. Oh, sure, still wouldn't be any LEFT. The only shreds of a motorist knew about was his own, for the roads didn't have any. Knew action was an accessory that the driver had to furnish himself and believe me, trying to keep your feet on your pedals and take care of the rebound from the bumps gave you plenty of those action. I took a lot of push to go anywhere in an automobile in those days. Most of the cars were painted black. They didn't go in for fancy colors like they do today. They would just smear a mess of black paint on 'em and the factory and the motorist could get any color he wanted according to what color he wanted. We used to be able to stand on a corner here in Florida and pretty near have a tourist come from by the color of his car.

We had red clay cars from Georgia, Ochre cars from South Carolina, Missouri-blue and Indiana limestone, and one of these cross country drivers would come to town in what looked like a Leopard. I remember a guy who nicknamed his car Joseph on account of it having a coat of so many colors. And most folks were downright proud of such marks of distinguished travel. The more different kinds of mud a fellow could display on his fenders, the more important he felt.

But then days are gone forever. Now we have smooth, clean, beautiful highways practically all the way from Canada to the Gulf and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Highway associations are doing a splendid work in bringing about the construction of about links needed here and there and in giving publicity to these various routes.

Fifty-two applications for old age assistance were approved this week by District 10 Board of Social Welfare.

Motor Car Accident Rate Reduced in Southern States

Safety education, standardization of traffic regulations, improved highways and road markings have all helped to bring about a reduction in the highway traffic accident rate in the south during the past year.

Highway traffic fatalities in the southern states were reduced more than seven percent in 1936, according to preliminary figures for the first ten months of the year compiled this week.

The states of Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi and Tennessee all registered reductions in the ratio of traffic fatalities to gasoline consumption.

The State of Florida made the best record with only 287 fatalities per ten million gallons of gasoline consumed by motorists. It was pointed out by W. B. Smith, president of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky.

"Although the year 1936 saw a marked increase in motor travel throughout the south as indicated by the increased consumption of gasoline, motorists in this section established new standards for safety and the accident rate veered sharply downward," Mr. Smith stated.

Kentucky and Georgia were the two states showing the greatest improvement over 1935. Tennessee registered a 15 percent improvement in the ratio of fatalities to gasoline per ten million gallons of gasoline was

ST. VALENTINE

ST. VALENTINE, in whose name expressions of sentiment have been exchanged since early Roman times, appeared frequently in church history. Monks or priests have been named under that name in France, Italy, Spain and South Africa, and it was given special significance in the Third century by a Roman priest noted for his good deeds and also by a certain bishop of Umbria.

But a favorite legend identifies the saint who is responsible for our annual indulgence in face paper, cupid and sweet ditties with a Roman youth of the early Christian era, who chose to be crucified rather than deny his adherence to the new faith. While being in prison awaiting execution, he fell in love with his jailer's daughter and left her a farewell message signed "from your Valentine." Early Christians in honor are identified with the Roman festival of the Lupercal, in which supplicants prayed for success in mating.

Valentine's in the familiar heart shape were "made" in England as early as the fourteenth century, and St. Valentine's day is mentioned by both Chaucer and Shakespeare. Probably the earliest Valentine in the English language was written in 1419.

This day Dame Nature seemed to the lady sap-began to move, and the lady sap-began to move, and the lady sap-began to move, and the lady sap-began to move.

The larva of the dragonfly is a savage enemy to young fish. It lies in wait until a victim comes into reach and then snares it with a vicious pincer-like organ.

PLANT BOARD PROTECTS FLORIDA FARM EMPIRE FROM RAVAGING PESTS

Preventing the entry into Florida of foreign insects and diseases affecting plants and plant products is more economical, by far, than eradication after they have become established.

Should any insect or disease slip past the inspectors, a second line of defense is still to be reckoned with by the invaders. Nursery inspectors who inspect each of Florida's 51,363,969 nursery plants an average of four to five times a season and the grove inspectors who endeavor to inspect once every two years the 26,000,000 citrus trees growing in the state constitute the secondary line.

Plant pests seeking entry into Florida from foreign ports have a wide choice as to modes of transportation. At Miami is established what is probably the world's largest international airport. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, 1,239 passengers arrived at that place from foreign ports. Miami last year stood second in number of passengers arriving from foreign ports—it was outranked only by the Port of New York.

Besides commercial planes, many private planes may bring plant pests into Florida; also passenger ships, freighters, car ferries loaded with plant products, and, at times, race horses and their feed. As Florida grows so well its traffic with foreign lands. And with the growth of foreign trade, with its huge passenger ships, its freighters with ever-increasing cold storage facilities, its airplanes and its dirigibles, so will grow the number of plant pests seeking admission.

"Banjo on My Knee" at Prince Theatre Sunday

A drama with music, deftly relieved by comedy and enlivened by several new songs being combined to make "Banjo on My Knee" which plays at the Prince theatre Sunday and Monday, a hit screen production. Add to this a story that is distinctly different in theme and plot construction; with the local interest of everyone, from the shanty-boaters who live, love and die on their ramshackle barges on the lower Mississippi and the sum total is something new in movie entertainment.

Fighting, loving, laughing, the tempestuous emotions of these picturesque children of the mighty river; stir the blood and intrigue the interest of everyone, from the opening scene to the thrilling climax.

The story opens with the shanty boat of Walter Brennan, whose son, Joel McCrae, is about to marry a "hand girl," Barbara Stanwyck. Brennan is entertaining the guests by playing his one man band "contraption" comprising almost every conceivable musical gadget including the "banjo on my knee." Everyone is merry except Katherine DeMille, who wants Joel for herself. She boasts to her blubbery Granny, Helen Westray, that she could get him right now if she wanted him. Barbara overhearing, declares that she can love deeper and fight better than any girl on the river.

The picture is one of the most highly entertaining to be booked at the Prince this season and the management recommends that moviegoers plan to see it Sunday or Monday.

PRUNES ARE PRICELESS

CANNED fresh prunes are not only called by some canners (who ought to know) "the best thing that was ever put into a can," but they are mighty accommodating about the ways in which they can be served. Beginning with breakfast, here are some of the ways:

• Cracked Wheat with Canned Prunes: Bring two cups water and one-half teaspoon salt to boiling, add seven-eighths cup canned cracked wheat, and let boil directly over the fire for five minutes. Then cook over hot water for an hour and a half. Make the night before, and simply reheat in the double boiler in the morning. Serve with canned fresh prunes and top milk or cream. Serves four liberally.

Keep the Children Happy Another prime dish that will help to keep the children happy at breakfast is this:

• Compote of Pies and Prunes: Turn the contents of a 3-ounce can figs, one cup of canned fresh prunes and one-third cup water into a sauce pan and simmer gently for about fifteen minutes. Serve cold. Serves five, or four liberally.

Still another tempting breakfast dish is shredded wheat with canned fresh prunes and cream. The prunes should be left in the refrigerator over night, then poured in the morning on the shredded wheat which has been crisped in the oven. Cream may be whole, half or part evaporated milk.

OFFICIALS FUSS—

"Well, I haven't anything to say about that."

Comptroller Lee started the discussion when he said, "I want to inquire about the status of the hospital."

"Status?" said Governor Cone. "What status?"

"I want to know who is in charge over there," Lee said.

"I suppose Mr. Ayers is in charge until he is relieved, said Cone."

"Dr. Therrell has been in charge since yesterday at the direction of the board," said Treasurer Knott, who accompanied Therrell to the hospital while Ayers was in Tallahassee.

Lee said the board's action was taken without his knowledge while he was sick last week and that his first information was obtained when the matter was mentioned in an executive session of the cabinet Monday.

"It seems the superintendent has been removed and his successor actually checked in," said Lee, "but I don't know whether there had been an audit."

Lee sought to have the board recall the Therrell appointment and place Dr. Ralph Stevens, chief physician, in charge "until this matter can be thrashed out clearly and properly at a meeting of the full board," but both motions failed because they were not seconded.

Governor Cone, Comptroller Lee, Treasurer Knott and Secretary of State Gray were the only cabinet members present.

"It isn't fair to Ayers just to go over there and throw him out in his absence and put the other man in," said Lee.

"I don't want this man Ayers in there," said Cone. "A man who would do a thing like that isn't fit to be in there," he said as he took from his coat pocket a folded paper he said showed cigarettes, playing cards and "other things" delivered to Ayers residence were paid for by the state.

Comptroller Lee said he opposed Therrell because "when I became controller of this state, I found that Therrell, as a bank liquidator had received some sixty-four thousand dollars of excess fees. When I made demand upon him
